For Your Information

How does memory function?

What is memory? - It's a mental process that is able to acquire, retrieve, and attain information overtime.

Memory has three processes

1. Encoding - Inputting information into memory which is done by making mental representations of information.
2. Storage - It's the place where encoded information is retained.
3. Retrieval - The process of recalling information either short or long term memory. It's responsible for bringing information into conscious awareness.

Three stages of memory

1. Sensory memory - the system of memory which briefly stores information for  $\frac{1}{4}$  - 3secs and has limited duration and long term capacity.

Two types of sensory memory

- 💡 Iconic memory - Automatically holds visual information for  $\frac{1}{4}$  - 1½secs.
- 💡 Echoic memory - Automatically holds auditory information for 2- 4secs.

Three stages of memory (continue)

2. Short-term memory - A system of memory that holds an average amount of items for a short period of time (30secs). It has limited capacity and duration without any type of rehearsal.
3. Long-term memory - A system of memory that stores information a long period of time. It has unlimited capacity and duration.

Two dimensions of long-term memory

1. Implicit memory aka non declarative memory – the unconscious use of memory without awareness. Example: typing
2. Explicit memory aka declarative memory – the conscious use of memory with awareness.

Remember Zakat

Penny Activity

How many of you have seen and know what's on the front of a penny, don't look, no cheating. Ready, write your answers down to see how well you remember.

1. Which way is Lincoln's head is facing? Left or right?
2. If any, what is written above his head?
3. If any, what is written below his head?
4. If any, what is written to the left of his head?
5. If any, what is written to the right of his head?

Next week 3 ways to extend your short-term memory
